Summary of Professional Experience

Adam Safir has more than 15 years of experience in survey management, data collection, analysis, and reporting for behavioral and attitudinal research studies. His areas of specialization include survey design, methodology, and management. Safir has had responsibility for all aspects of projects, including proposal development; defining research issues; coordination of technical staff; instrument development; budget preparation; training project staff; monitoring of all task schedules, costs, and production; and supervision of data collection, data analysis, quality control, and report writing. He is an experienced programmer with technical proficiency in SAS, SPSS, Stata, and WesVar.

Education

M.B.A., Marketing Research, University of Maryland, College Park, MD, 2001
B.A., Sociology, University of Maryland, College Park, MD, 1995

Professional Experience

- 2007 to date U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, Washington, DC.
- Senior Statistician. Conducts methodological research for the U.S. Consumer Expenditure Surveys Program, focusing on mode effects, questionnaire design, and measurement error.
- 2004 to 2007 RTI International, Washington, DC.
- Survey Methodologist. Provided methodological expertise and management oversight for ongoing survey research projects, including sample design, questionnaire design, survey estimation and weighting, data development (including adjustments for missing data and data editing), assessment of bias due to various sources of error, analysis of survey data, and reporting. Leads efforts to identify and resolve methodological, measurement, and data collection issues.
- 1999 to 2004 The Urban Institute, Washington, DC.
- Research Associate. Managed disclosure risk review and production of public use micro data files for the 1999 and 2002 National Survey of America's Families, including the preparation of supporting technical documentation for changes in imputation and weighting adjustments. Technical writing for methodological reports covering sample design, questionnaire changes, and data use issues. Provided statistical, technical, and methods support to internal staff and external data users. Developed statistical programming tools for automated iterative processing, output, and formatting of state-level data books with design-adjusted standard errors for survey estimates.
- Survey Associate. Managed data development for the 1999 and 2002 National Survey of America's Families, including general data editing, data consistency checks, data imputation for item nonresponse, analytic variable construction, and benchmarking. Provided training, support, and technical advice for data users. Conducted workshops for internal staff and external audiences on issues related to working with hierarchical micro data files and replicate weights for variance estimation with complex sample survey data. Assisted with the evaluation of alternative methods of imputation, nonresponse adjustment, and post-stratification and raking of survey weights.
- 1996 to 1999 Arbitron Inc, Columbia, MD.
- Contract Interviewing Supervisor. Responsible for the oversight of three data collection suppliers with combined staff of over 300 telephone interviewers. Monitored contact, cooperation, and production rates; assessed adherence to methodological standards and practices; developed site-specific initiatives to improve survey performance. Oversaw the implementation and evaluation of new interviewer training modules.
- Research Analyst. Conducted extensive testing of alternative survey treatments, incentive structures, and time-use diary designs to increase survey participation, maximize response rates, and improve data quality. Contributed to new methods development and evaluation. Assisted in the design of survey questionnaires on a wide range of topics for business development, including audience measurement, market research, and customer satisfaction. Analyzed diary data, wrote executive reports summarizing results, and presented findings to internal and external audiences.

1993 to 1996

University of Maryland Survey Research Center, College Park, MD.

Project Coordinator. Responsible for the design and implementation of national, state and local telephone and mail surveys for government, academic, business, and non-profit organizations. Duties involved overall survey management, including initial client consultation, questionnaire development, instrument testing, CATI-programming, data collection oversight, data analysis, and report writing.

Call Center Supervisor. Supervised evening operations of 30-station call center. Responsible for managing interviewer assignments, meeting sample production goals, and maintaining cooperation rates. Prepared daily project reports and study-specific debriefing agendas. Assisted in interviewer recruitment, training, and the preparation of interviewing manuals.

Telephone Interviewer. Interviewed respondents for national, state, and local telephone surveys. Specialized in refusal conversion and sensitive-topic surveys.
